French nobleman who seeks to wed Mme. Anna Gould, divorced wife of Count Boni de Castellane. The Prince is 48 years old and quite gray.

Snapshot of the Prince as he arrived in New York, which, he declared, is the best picture ever made of him.

DENOUNCE BRAYTON IN NOISY CONVENTION

BRANDED AS WRECKER OF PARTY AT MEETING OF R. I. REPUBLICAN DELEGATES.

[illegible]

Pleads for Square Deal.
The trouble started after the organization of the convention, in which Speaker of the House Roswell P. Burchard was gan's amendment tacked on to it, nullifying the effect the man from Cranston desired, was passed by a large majority. Two committees on resolution and platform were appointed.

Hisses for the "Boss."

After a recess Stockwell again secured the floor. "Over 90 per cent. of the people of Rhode Island do not want to see Charles R. Brayton returned as national committeeman."

There were loud hisses from the gallery when Brayton's name was mentioned and there were cheers for Stockwell. Continuing Stockwell said:

"The Republican party has lost the Governor for two years and I attribute it solely to the stigma attached to the name of Charles R. Brayton."

Stockwell shouted this out and again the convention roared.

Indorses National Politics.

William A. Morgan of Providence then read the platform of the committee and it was adopted. The platform indorses the National Republican administration and the State machine.

The Committee on Resolutions reported the following resolutions as follows—large to small:

Resolved, That we, the National Convention of the American People, do hereby

Andrew J. Currier of Cambridge, John W. H. Smith of Providence, John W. H. Smith of Providence, and Alexander G. Crumb of West alternates: Frederick W. Easton of Pawtucket, Henry B. Cain of Narragansett, James B. Eddy of Providence and George

The convention then adjourned.

POSTPONE CLUB BANQUET.

The banquet committee of the Young Men's Republican Club of Dorchester announced today that the Spring banquet of the club, which was to have been held at the American House April 2, has been postponed until May on account of the illness of a Government official.

NEW YORK, Me 26.—If Helie Talleyrand-Perigord, ex de Sagan, and already engaged to Miss. Ad Gould, the only daughter of the Count Bout de Castelaine, that it is wish to make her his wife and thereby set himself with the millions left by father, the late Jay Gould, and later so what disturbed by the spending of Count de Sagan, the French prince, when Miss Gould and the Prince met the Wyoming apartments to accept the hospitality of Mr. and Mrs. Tyler Morse.

Since he and Miss. Gould dined together on Sunday night, after Helie had arrived in New York under the name of "H. de Sagan," the French duke has not seen Miss. Gould. But he has telephoned her he admires himself—and has heard of her—and it has comforted him when he heard she was alone in the hotel to hotel to, from New York to Philadelphia, changing his name from Thomas de Sagan.

Mrs. Andrew J. Borden of Newton Highlands Swallows Carbolic Acid in Narragansett Hotel, Providence—Attendants Summoned by Shrieks of Agony.

Mrs. Andrew J. Borden, one of the wealthiest and best-known residents of Newton Highlands, is dying at the Rhode Island Hospital in Providence as the result of carbolic acid poisoning.

The greatest mystery surrounds the case, for dispatches from Providence received by friends here say that the young woman deliberately swallowed a phial of the deadly poison while alone in her apartments in the Narragansett Hotel in Providence.

Her shrieks of agony and her piteous cries for her young husband, who was absent from her room, first aroused the attention of the hotel people early today.

"WHY DOESN'T HE CARE?"
 Breathing in the door, the hotel clerk was horrified to see the pretty woman, who is but thirty-two years of age, lying writhing on the floor. Her whitened lips and staring eyes and the strong smell of carbolic acid in the room told the tale.

MANY CALLERS AT HOUSE.

There is no letup in the number of callers at the Governor's residence. The cards are left in the basket at the door daily. The callers continue to come from all over the State and country.

The following telegram was received to-day:

Mrs. Curtis Guild, Jr., Boston, Mass., to Governor: "I have been sympathizing with you for thought for several days, on account of the trouble you are having."

CAMBRIDGE BELE ENOWN 66 MORSE

June Wedding Announced for Ice King's Son and Miss Perey.

Benjamin Wyman Morse, son of the former Ice King, is to carry off one of University City's fairest daughters, Miss
Alma Perey, daughter of City Solicitor
John C. Perey. Their wedding will take place in June, after the graduation of Mr.
Morse from Harvard College.

Young Mr. Morse is devoted to athletics, and his bride-to-be is also accomplished in many of the sports. They have been seen many times within the last few weeks riding together, and the announcement of their engagement did not come as a surprise to their intimate friends, who had all along believed that such would be the end of the matter.

After he concludes his academic career as senior, young man will enter his course in the law. The young couple will be married in June, while causes register in Cambridge social circles.

Most marvelous novel since the masterpieces of Jules Verne, "THE

To Owners of Bad Breath--

Fool Odds of Indigestion, Smoking, Eating or Drinking Stopped at Once With Stutz's Charcoal Lozenges.

Tryal Package To Prove It Sent Free.

Silicious breathers, often enter, indigestion, indigestion, cabbage consumers, smokers, drinkers and those with gas in the stomach are in a class all by themselves, distinguished by a powerful bad breath.

They all breathe, and as they breathe, they will out odor which makes those standing near turn their heads away in disgust. The pitiable part of it is that these victims do not realize what the sickening thing is. Bad offensive breath is to others.

Charcoal is a wonderful absorber of gases and odors. It absorbs 100 times its own volume of gas.

Stutz's Charcoal Lozenges will put a stop to your bad, offensive breath, and to your indigestion, whatever the cause or source, because the charcoal quickly absorbs all noxious, unnatural odors and gases.

If you suffer from indigestion and which get as a result, Stutz's Charcoal Lozenges will make your breath
pure and sweet.

And then, too, it filters your blood-- every particle of poison and impurity in your blood is destroyed, and you begin to notice the difference in your face first thing--your clear complexion.

If you have been smoking or chewing, or have been eating onions or other odorous things, Stutz's Charcoal Lozenges will make your breath
pure and sweet.

Charcoal is the best laxative known. You can take a whole boxful and no harm will result. It is a wonderfully easy regulator.

BAKER SLAIN BY ARSENIC, SAYS JURY

Evidence Collected at the Coroner's Inquest Will Go to the Grand Jury.

TO PRODUCE MORE PROOF

NEW YORK, March 25.—Declaring that Walter Farson Baker of Boston was murdered by arsenic poisoning, the coroner's jury which investigated his death today gave its official confirmation of the claim that young Baker was slain.

The report of the jury, the evidence laid before it and other valuable testimony are to be laid before the Grand Jury April 13. In an effort to determine who killed Baker, the coroner is the verdict of the coroner's jury. We find that Walter Farson Baker died at Boston, N. Y., at or near 2:30 a. m., October 29, of arsenic poisoning administered at or near the residence of the deceased at or near the residence of the body and who administered the body without the authority of the coroner.

DIFFICULTY OVER HILL A DIPLOMATIC SCANDAL

AMAZING TANGLE OVER NEW GERMAN ENVOY HAS BECOME SERIOUS.

BERLIN, March 25.—The tangle over Germany's "eleventh hour" objection to Dr. David Jayne Hill as an ambassador to the Kaiser's court has developed into a serious diplomatic scandal.

It will amount to nothing but talk of the Kaiser's satisfaction with Dr. Hill, who had not yet been named as ambassador, the suggestion that Germany doesn't want him is enough to cause the Kaiser to look for any government.

The tangle over the Hill will be, it is, in fact, already a rather disagreeable thing.

This Germany should have expressed its objection to Hill, who had been named as ambassador, and then the thing took it is openly declared in official circles, like a "put up job," for the Kaiser's court.

HIGHWAYMAN IN CAB KILLED IN POLICE DUEL

Three Thugs in Evening Clothes Terrorize Chicago District and Hold-Up Many.

CHICAGO, March 25.—A highwayman was killed at daylight today in a running battle between a solitary policeman and three robbers who had terrorized a whole district, and then emptied their pistols at their pursuer.

The killing was the result of a series of holdups in which the thugs, who were evening suits, snatched a cab and robbed every belated pedestrian they met.

The dead highwayman was not yet 30 years old. He was shot through the back of the head by a bullet from the back of the highwayman's revolver.

The highwayman was a man of about 30, with dark hair, and a mustache, and was dressed in a dark suit and a dark shirt. He was shot through the back of the head by a bullet from the back of the highwayman's revolver.

MILK WAR MAY LEAD TO HUB FAMINE

Farmers Fight Trust's Cut in Price and Threaten to Withhold Product.

MASS MEETINGS CALLED

Hundreds of farmers all over New England are today planning to fight the reduction of 40 cents a can for milk, which has just been announced by the directors of the Boston Co-operative Milk Producers' Association, commonly known as the "Milk Trust."

The members of the Milk Producers' Union declare that at 20 cents a can, the new price, they cannot afford to sell milk, and they will withhold their product from the trust. If they carry out their intention, Boston will be practically without milk, and the trust had cut the price several cents on the can.

The new price will go into effect next Tuesday, to hold for six months. This was the word given out after an all-day conference between the representatives of the producers and the contractors held in this city yesterday at the American House.

Bay Market Demoralized.

After hours of wrangling the conference was adjourned in the afternoon and evening to the office of the contractors in the Pendergast square.

The officers of the producers' association today flatly told the contractors that 20 cents a can was the price they would accept, but the latter replied that the Boston market was demoralized, and that they had no choice but to accept the price of 20 cents a can.

Dorothy Dodd SHOES

DOROTHY DODD SHOES, being in great demand, are spuriously imitated. An imitation is the effort of weak people to build like strong people. Everything about Dorothy Dodd Shoes has been imitated except the name and the quality. They dare not imitate the name and they cannot imitate the quality. The young misses' style and the old lady's comfort are only combined in Dorothy Dodd. If you don't know how Dorothy Dodd Shoes feel, and look, and satisfy, you can't understand the great demand for them. Wear them once and you'll realize.

Low Cut Styles are more than ever the vogue. And certainly prettier shoes never were seen than the new "Dorothy Dodd" styles.

Tans and Copper Browns are extremely fashionable. For dress service, Patent Leathers fill the want. Glazed Kids and Gun Metals are, as always, in demand. We have them all, and all at the moderate "Dorothy Dodd" prices.

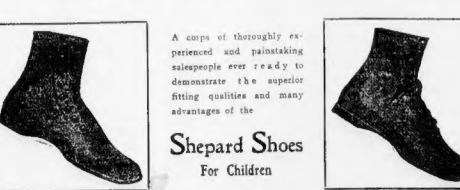

THE SHEPARD SHOE

For Boys and Girls of All Ages

COMMON SENSE always dictates our selections of Juvenile Footwear. We realize the importance of training a child's foot to grow in the way nature intended, and so offer shoes accordingly. "Don't Get the Drifting Habit"

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

HOW easy it is to be drifting. There is no habit so easily acquired as that of drifting, and dreaming of the great things we will do later. And all the time the precious hours are slipping by and we are not taking advantage of them.

Not a day should pass without our learning something. We should feel each day that we are wiser than we were the day before.

When we are children at school, our minds are trained so that every day we acquire knowledge.

But as soon as we get away from the school's discipline, we fall into the habit of "putting off till to-morrow."

Many of us have the habit of waiting until we have the "time" or "mood" strikes us when we have a certain thing to do.

Very often the mood does not strike until the day is passed off. We could get to work all right if we made ourselves.

Don't Wait for the "Mood"
The people who wait for the "mood" is particularly the case. Often I know that there is a certain story I should write, and I find myself saying, "Oh, that story! Well, I'll write it when the mood strikes me." And that's the end of it.

If you have a particular piece of work to do, get at it as soon as possible. Don't wait for the mood to strike you.

Don't dream! There are more precious hours wasted in day-dreaming than any of us would care to think about if we counted them.

The queer thing about day-dreams is that as few of them ever amount to anything. The dreamer is only unconscious when building his air castles, so as a rule they have no practical foundation.

While you are at work, keep your mind on what you are doing and do not let it wander off to what you would like to be doing.

The best time for day-dreams is after you have gone to bed, and are just ready to drift off into real dreams.

Only Wide-Awakes Win Success

The practical, wide-awake young men and women are the ones who make a success of life. They let no opportunities slip by them, and they are not afraid of doing a little more than their share of work.

They do not always feel that the person in authority over them is exacting more than his due nor ready to take advantage of their good nature.

The result is that they establish a reputation for willingness and ability, and their employers are glad to promote them.

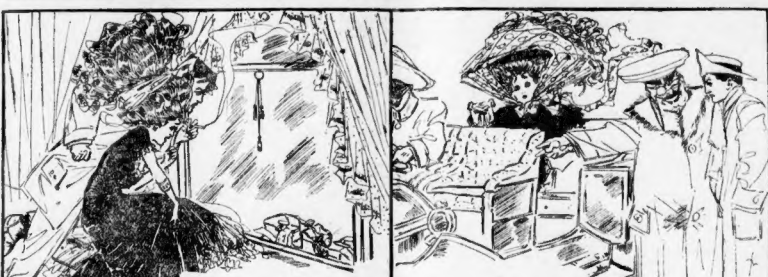

No matter what your financial status may be, you cannot afford to be lazy. If you do not have to earn your own living, then you have all the more time to devote to self-improvement.

Do something. Have some interest in life. Learn something every day.

When you are old you can afford to sit and dream. In the meantime, store your mind with knowledge and your life with interest, so that in old age you will have something to look back upon and to dream about.

"Oh, Billy," pouted Betty, "see, there comes that ugly Count de Brille, to take me motoring, but you and Brindle must go with us, too."

The Count, who Billy had with disgust, "Monseigneur," he said, "I fear you must take ze front seat, ze tonneau—well, he just feet me and ma maitresse!"

Along the country road they flew. And Betty laughed, and Billy knew she had some plan for mischief.

Which he would know of by and by. The Count with features very black, the Count with features very black, the Count with features very black.

"Two Brindle then caught Betty's eye. And presently I wonder why? He growled a growl both loud and gruff, and staid the Count's fur-covered cuff!"

And he changed to Billy's place, And Billy, with a happy face, sat very close to Betty's side!

Though Betty soon jerked Brindle back, And Billy, with a happy face, sat very close to Betty's side!

Brother Wilfred Decides to Go Into Politics

By WILLIAM B. KIRK

"BROTHER," queried the Mancure Lady, "do you know anything about politics?"

"Slightly little," admitted the Head Barber, who wanted to confess his lack of knowledge on any subject. "I had a brother that was married to the sister of a police justice in Harrison, Pennsylvania. Outside of that I never paid no attention to it. Why?"

"Oh, Brother Wilfred is getting interested in politics that's all," said the Mancure Lady.

"He was (telling me last night that the first shifting of his attention in life. Why don't he rent a safe up on the Heights? It would be nice and quiet, and the time he could write all the poetry on the side he wants to write, and he could have a place to store a nice little business on the side."

"I was just telling you that I know much about it," replied the Head Barber. "Politics is nothing but a lot of games, for the matter of that."

But of course one who only the Head Barber of this ranch, I am dealing out the paddock information.

He Proposes to the Girl's Pa

BEING A PHILOSOPHER HE SAID "YES"

"I WANT you 'sposed he'd finally just 'no," the old gentleman answered. "I tell you what I'd like to do is to do, and that is to make a week and think it over yourself. You may change your mind when you see the matter closer reflection."

"The quite sure I should, it is," said the young man. "But because you haven't considered the matter seriously, you haven't considered it intelligently."

"You have often," rejoined the old gentleman, "no doubt that you have. But you haven't looked at them with calculating eye. You've seen all kinds of blouses and low and underbusts and gloves and slippers and false no doubt, but I'm not sure that you haven't ever considered to go into the store and price these things alluring they cost."

"I haven't," admitted the young man. "But I don't see what that has to do with it."

"Well, I want to tell you that they all cost money and so you can't see them all. Do you want to see them? The very best there is."

"The very best is none too good for me," said the young man, firmly. "That's the way Nancy looks at it, and she's right. I want to see them all. Do you want to see them? The very best there is."

FRIED TOMATOES
Slice the tomatoes and dip them in well beaten eggs, season with salt, pepper and sugar, then roll in sugar and flour, fry in deep fat until browned. Have a tablespoonful of butter in the pan, and when the tomatoes are done, pour the butter over them. Serve on a slice of toast.

FRENCH FRIED POTATOES
Put small unpeeled potatoes, divided into halves and smaller, in three plates, put in the frying pan, drizzle with oil, and fry until browned. Drain on a cloth, and serve with butter and salt.

CHILI SAUCE
Two cans tomatoes, six medium onions, one-half cup vinegar, pepper, and salt, one-half cup oil, and one-half cup sugar. Cook in a large pot for one hour, then add one-half cup of chili powder, and cook for one hour more. Serve with rice or bread.

TEA BISCUITS
Three cups of flour, three teaspoons lard, one teaspoon sugar, and one-half teaspoon salt. Mix with cold water, roll out, and bake in a hot oven for ten minutes. Serve with butter and sugar.

Who Can Explain This Odd Fact About Numbers?
EDITOR HOME MAGAZINE: While reading your "Old Facts About Numbers," which appeared on the magazine page, I recalled the mysterious number 1729. The number 1729 is the sum of two cubes in two different ways: 1729 = 10³ + 9³ = 1³ + 12³. This is a very curious fact, and I wonder if you can explain it.

SNOW PUDDING
One quart of a package of gelatin, one quart of water, and one quart of sugar. Cook for one hour, then add one quart of milk, and cook for one hour more. Serve with fruit and cream.

Don't Speak Unkindly of Your Friends

It is so short to be wasteful in saying any thing about other people. Do you ever try to go for a whole week without saying unkindly of anybody? It isn't easy. It's astonishing the number of silly things we say without actually meaning to be unkind. Most of us are too critical in our attitude toward others. We are too ready to find fault with them, and when half the time, we are in their place, we would be just as ready to find fault with them.

JORDAN MARSH SHOWS MODEL SUMMER HOME

Artistic Furnishings Chosen by Experts Produce "House Beautiful." COMFORT PROVIDED FOR

That the modern creed of the "House Beautiful" is now practiced, not only in the permanent structure of the town house and the year-around residence, but also in the more temporary home for vacation and relaxation purposes, is shown in the model Summer cottage furnished on the fifth floor of the Jordan Marsh Company.

There was when the resident was contented with "any old thing" for Summer cottage furnishing, no matter how luxurious or elaborate might be the furnishings of the regular home.

A higher standard of living and a constant demand for the beautiful in connection with the permanent structure of the house, has led to the development of the Summer cottage and bungalow to a point today where the weather comfort is blended with an artistic atmosphere to the detail of the arrangement.

Artistic Furnishing. The cottage is the work of the interior decorating department of the company. In this connection it is remarked that the Jordan Marsh Company's furnishing department is well equipped for the purpose.

Harmony of furnishing, of color and of scheme is the dominant idea in decoration. Every room is furnished with a particular reference to the uses of that particular room.

Living room. The living room is a room of the cottage, furnished with a comfortable and cozy atmosphere. The furniture is of the latest style, and the color scheme is of the most harmonious.

Dining room. The dining room is a room of the cottage, furnished with a comfortable and cozy atmosphere. The furniture is of the latest style, and the color scheme is of the most harmonious.

Kitchen. The kitchen is a room of the cottage, furnished with a comfortable and cozy atmosphere. The furniture is of the latest style, and the color scheme is of the most harmonious.

Bedroom. The bedroom is a room of the cottage, furnished with a comfortable and cozy atmosphere. The furniture is of the latest style, and the color scheme is of the most harmonious.

Bath. The bath is a room of the cottage, furnished with a comfortable and cozy atmosphere. The furniture is of the latest style, and the color scheme is of the most harmonious.

Refining Coolness. The morning room has a refreshing effect of coolness, brought about by skillful use of wallpaper, wicker furniture and decorative accessories. It is just the room for a woman who loves a morning coffee to herself.

There are three chambers. The guest chamber is ideal. The wall paper has a subtle effect, pattern, design, color and texture. The furniture is of the latest style, and the color scheme is of the most harmonious.

The family chamber, a little larger than the guest chamber, is furnished with a comfortable and cozy atmosphere. The furniture is of the latest style, and the color scheme is of the most harmonious.

Today's Lesson in The American's Course for Salespeople

No. 14

Copyright, 1908, by American Journal Education

If down in your heart and up in your mind you have the feeling that you can accomplish better and bigger things, then you have the germ of advancement. CULTIVATE IT.

When you start your work in the morning, do so with the determination to do some little duty better than you did it yesterday.

Begin on your stock. If you have been putting off looking up some part of it or checking over where there may be some things needed—do not put it off any longer. GET RIGHT AT IT and your work will run smoother.

Be one of those salespeople whom the other salespeople envy because their work is always "caught up."

By having your stock in good shape you are ready to give your best attention to your customers, and in the wear and tear of a busy day your nerves will come out in better shape than if you were constantly worried by petty annoyances that could be avoided by careful stock-keeping.

Even if it seems irksome to go through stock over and over again, do it cheerfully. Even if you are doing over something that was wrongly done at first, do it willingly; remembering that the next time you can avoid the same error.

BE FIXED IN YOUR PURPOSE and let that purpose be to GO AHEAD and advancement will come.

Next Lesson in Saturday's American.

Out out these "lessons." Every Sunday we print a review and self-examination. A good plan is to clip the lessons and reviews out and paste them in a scrapbook. You will then have a manual on salesmanship that you could not buy for a good many dollars. It may be worth hundreds to you in increased salary.

TOP OF THE SPRINTERS TO RACE FOR CHAMP

Winner take all. That's the condition under which Saturday night at the Park Square track when they meet in the match race as a half mile, and third best selected by the crowd.

Taylor is no confident that he has found the way to win the country and he was glad to take the chance to meet the colored sprinter in the French method, and he may spring a surprise on the celebrated sprinter.

He has done some sensational riding in the professional sprint, races this winter and is recognized as a worthy opponent to meet Taylor and really class with him.

Bedell intends to beat Taylor by his own style of riding, making every last bit of speed from the gun, as he has found the grating when it comes to making a wheel by while Taylor is noted for the more familiar to the French method.

Bedell is the best man in the country to-day to give Taylor battle, as he is in the best condition, and there will be no changing the standing of Taylor if he is able to take the measure of the New Yorker in the dirt.

It will be a good race to Taylor's hopes if Bedell proves his master, as the speeder would go to Taylor immediately to the match race and a loss would hurt his chances for the title.

The winner will be in line to meet Paul Hackett, who has carried the title of champion, but refuses to go against the top sprinters for four or five months.

How to Improve Your Way of Talking

A Simple Question, Apparently, but Rather Complicated

Copyright, 1908, by American Journal-Examiner

"M. F." whose full name and address are withheld, says in a letter:

I am a workman, twenty-seven, American, and anxious to improve my English, or grammar, my pronunciation being poor also. I am trying to find a position where a man must not only know how to do work, but also to explain it, sell it. And, a good, clear explanation in fair English will do wonders in disposing of my work. I lack the language or words to express myself, and for this reason I ask your help and advice.

What do you consider the best plan—read books or private instruction? Occasionally I have to work at night. My Sundays are open and evenings after 7:30. I cannot pay a high rate of tuition, as my salary is very moderate.

Any information will be most thankfully received by one who has educated himself, as it is, with the valuable help of your editorials.

This reader is to be congratulated upon the fact that he understands the importance of language.

With words we make our meaning clear to others, we persuade, we interest people or bore them.

The ordinary business man, clerk, salesman, etc., depends upon his knowledge of language, very often, as the carpenter depends upon his understanding of tools and their use. Language is the tool chest of thought.

Many hundred books have been written, and many hundred more might be written, to answer the apparently simple question that this man asks. In this short column any answer must be a brief, disjointed, insufficient thing.

Language is ordinarily a matter of early impressions. Any human being, without effort, can be taught to speak correctly before the age of seven. Unfortunately, a great majority of us spend the first seven years learning to speak incorrectly. It often takes twenty years to get over the bad habits of the first seven years. Sometimes a whole lifetime of effort doesn't suffice to break the habits engrained on the childish mind.

This writer has known more than one determined man unable after years of struggle to overcome the treacherous "I done it." One who tried nobly—he is still trying—produces sentences of this thought, "Neither have I DID it."

A man's walk and speech are equally matters of habit, and habit dominates us with such tremendous force that for a great majority of men deficient in early education the real problem is OVERCOMING HABIT.

We should not advise a man of twenty-seven and with small income to spend money trying to improve his knowledge and use of the spoken language.

BOOKS will help, talk with men that speak correctly will help still more. WRITING is important—if you can get a friend able to criticize mistakes or suggest improvements.

A very good writer, talker and thinker was Bacon, the great philosopher of Queen Elizabeth's day. Some men say that he was the greatest thinking human being after Aristotle.

Concerning the effect of language and its study upon the human mind, Bacon said—we quote from memory:

"Reading maketh a full man."

"Writing maketh an exact man."

"Talking maketh a ready man."

Bacon did not refer to any question of the CORRECT USE of language. He referred to the effect of reading, writing and talking upon the human mind.

At the same time, Bacon's definition of the results of reading, writing and talking may be useful to our reader and to others who want to improve their English.

Reading gives you ideas, knowledge and a big vocabulary—that is to say, a big collection of words that you can use.

Writing teaches you to be exact in the EXPRESSION of thought. The writing hand holds back the mind, compels it to be deliberate, gives it time to formulate the thoughts concisely.

Talking, as Bacon says, "maketh a ready man." It compels instant response, it forces us to give expression to the thought as the thought is formed.

The man who writes or ought to practice all three—reading, writing and talking. Read good, well written books. One of the very best books from every point of view is the Bible. The Old Testament is beautiful, the New Testament is inspiring, elevating.

The language of Old and New Testament may undoubtedly be called the very best English that has ever been written. No one knows how much English speech and the written English language owe to the men that translated King James's edition of the Bible.

Bunyan is a good author for men that want to use English vigorously and simply.

Dickens is another. These are old-fashioned names, but don't imagine that any one of the six best sellers of to-day can take their places.

Read with a dictionary; when you don't know the exact meaning of a word, or its pronunciation, look it up. Have a good dictionary, one that gives the derivation of words. You use the language much more intelligently if you know its origin.

Practice reading out loud. You may read good English to yourself indefinitely and still speak incorrectly.

If you read aloud slowly, as much as an hour each day, you will form the habit of expressing thought in correct English. And bad habits of speech will gradually disappear.

More of this another day.

The Sad Lament of the Society Leader

By James J. Montague

(Newport has abolished monkey dinners, and henceforth will lead the simple life.)

I WANT but little here below; I do not care for ostentation. I do not want to be, you know, the theme of public conversation. Spectaculars of course I'll make—for one must live; but I'll endeavor my social pleasures to take with no publicity whatever. I have a Newport house, of course, with maybe half a hundred flunkies, but I'll drop that last divorce and die in future without monkeys.

Of course I'll be a sacrifice; those silent and cunning little creatures among all people really nice at banquets were the smartest features. When they decamped with an entrée, or spilled the cocktails chasing after the butler, and upset his tray, they always nuzzled our merry laughter. Sometimes they'd throw the soup at one—they had such pretty ways about them.

Or pet the hostess with a bun. Too bad that we must do without them.

AT Mrs. Vanderquish's ball especially they used to rotator. And romp, and clearly I recall how one dear fellow seized an oyster. And ere a wail could interfere he'd seized an aged German scholar. An honored guest—right by the ear and thrust the bivalve down his collar. Of course we sat around and roared; the clever little Shinnian stunner stood there and scowled and looked so bored—that that was a delightful dinner.

ANOTHER time an ape, I think, took up a heavy silver platter. And giving Mrs. Box a wink he very deftly heaved it at her. The platter held some mushrooms roasted—or maybe "texas tomatoes" truffled.

We shouted, but the lady seemed somehow to be a trifle ruffled. Ah! those delights of other days! No longer languid cheeks will dimple. Or men lie, hat at monkey's ways. Henceforth will life be sad—and simple.

The World Can Never Reach the Ideal Until the Term Mother-in-Law Ceases to Carry a Stigma

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

All the Oriental lands the mother-in-law is a thorn in the flesh of her daughter-in-law.

Much is said of the respect paid to parents in those lands; and it is a good thing, indeed, for any country to teach respect for parents as one of the cardinal virtues.

But it would be better were parents taught first to make themselves worthy of respect by cultivating a spirit of sympathy and kindness toward their daughter-in-law.

The daughter-in-law in India is a little less than the slave of her mother-in-law, and no matter how disagreeable, unkind and unkind the older woman may be, the husband would never think of defending his young wife against his mother.

It would violate his idea of respect to his "mother."

In Japan the same conditions prevail. I have just read a charming little novel of Japanese life, from which some sentences are given below. The novel is called "Nami-ko," and is by Keijiro Yokotani.

A new creed is issued for a time by the elder ones, but after a year or so, the time no greater pleasure than to see freshmen coming after him.

Frailty of Nature

A mother-in-law who knows her duty too well the painful experience she has when she first joined the family should not, on principle, treat a bride with indignity. But such is the frailty of human nature that when the flower of her youth has faded away and she finds herself transplanted to the position of mother-in-law, her scornful nature gets the upper hand and she becomes the very mother-in-law she so much detested.

Her family, with her mother-in-law, but to your husband you must be loathsome enough to read him a list of horrors known before.

A mother should be glad to see that her daughter-in-law is much attached to her son, but, strange to say, she does not generally like, well, the jealousy or selfishness.

It should be the ambition and pride of every woman of middle age to so help younger women and men over the difficult road of life.

And surely she must be most patient and tender with the wives of her sons and the husbands of her daughters.

She should attract them first with her admirable qualities; with her loving nature; with her patience; with her tolerance and liberality of judgment, and her ready expression of their good traits.

She should make them love her. Then all the rest would be easy, and the name "mother-in-law" would cease to suggest the human porcupine, a name which it so frequently merits to-day.
